

Hello this is JR Growney. I'd like to take this opportunity to welcome you to our program and tell you a little more about myself. I enjoyed a career primarily in program and project management, knowledge management, and business process improvement. For over fifteen years, I've worked in the information technology field in project work for implementing new technology in business systems for corporations in numerous vertical industries.

I'm currently a senior project manager with Computer Science Corporation, in the federal consulting practice. I'm the deputy director in the knowledge networks division - the largest division of the army battle command knowledge system program, located at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas.

I've obtained my PMP designation in December 2000. I've been an active member with the Kansas city chapter of the Project Management Institute, including participating as a mentor in the initial mentoring program. And, I'm currently on the board as VP of Administration.

I look forward to working with each of you. Thank you.
